Bowman's show at the Court house next Wednesday night will be well attended. Don't miss it.

Mr. W. A. Burton of Buckeye, Ky. is very sick. His son Mr. W. B. Burton has been at his bedside for several days.

A six months old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Arnold Jr. died at their home on the Danville pike Saturday and its remains were interred in the Lancaster cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Ten applicants took the examination for common school diplomas before the County Board of Examiners in Session yesterday at the High School. Five of them were white and five colored.

Hon. Ruby Laffoon candidate for the democratic nomination for State Auditor was in town Wednesday morning with friends. Mr. Laffoon is very popular over the state having led the ticket in the last gubernatorial election at which time he was a candidate for State Treasurer.

"Aunt" Sally Denny, a highly respected colored woman, died at her home on the Stanford pike on January 11th, aged seventy-three years. Formerly she was the slave of Joseph Burnside, of Garrard county. She was a worthy woman and had many friends among the white people. -Danville Advocate.

There has been no change in the last week in the tobacco situation, with the exception of the fact that in many counties considerable activity is being displayed among the farmers opposed to the cut-out, taking the form of public meetings, petitions, and in fact pursuing about the same line of action as the advocates of "no-crop."

Mr. John N. Ross who resides on the Stanford pike in the White Oak neighborhood has purchased of Mr. J. P. Prather his grocery and meat market on the public square and will take possession in about ten days. Mr. Ross will move to town and will occupy the residence of Mr. Prather on Stanford street, which he also purchased, together with the stock yards property for $2,500.

Aged Lady Dead.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hoskins, aged 85 years the mother of Mrs. C. B. Flanery, who resides near Hyattsville, died on Tuesday of the infirmities of old age. Her remains were taken to Berea for interment on Wednesday.

No night-riders in Garrard.

The tobacco barn belonging to Mr. W. V. Gastineau, the burning of which is mentioned in another column, was only a few hundred yards from the railroad, and as many tramps have been annoying the people of the vicinity of late, the theory that the barn was accidentally fired by tramps is generally accepted. The reports sent out that night riders were the cause of the burning is erroneous. There never was, is not at present, and we hope and believe there will never be any night riders in Garrard county.

Mrs. Bell dead.

The many friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Young Bell will be grieved to hear of her death which occurred at her home in Harrodsburg Tuesday morning as a result of injuries received in a street car accident in Seattle, Wash., in April last. Judge W. Con Bell her husband was killed in the wreck at the time Mrs. Bell was injured.

Mrs. Bell was well known here where she was very popular. When Judge Bell was on the bench she frequently came over and remained with him during the entire term of the Garrard Circuit Court.

Shugars.

A telegram was received here Tuesday announcing the sudden death of a former young man of this community, O. W. Shugars, now of Indianapolis. The deceased was about 35 years of age and had been residing in Indianapolis about 5 years where he was engaged in the insurance business. "Ode" as he was familiarly known here was a favorite being very affable in manner. He was the second son of Judge William Shugars and besides the aged father leaves one brother W. K. Shugars, and four sisters. The remains were brought here for interment. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved family.

Big Crop of Tobacco Burned.

On the night of January 26th a large tobacco barn on what is known as the Squire Schooler farm on Back Creek in this county, belonging to Mr. W. V. Gastineau was destroyed by fire. The barn contained 14,000 pounds of tobacco, bulked, stripped and ready for market, all of which was destroyed. The tobacco belonged to Mr. Gastineau and his tenants, A. I. McGuire, Geo. Lear and Will and Wade Kavanaugh, and was an exceptionally fine crop. The supposition is that the barn caught fire by tramps smoking in it, as there had been no fire in the stripping room for several days. Mr. Gastineau was in Lexington at the time of the fire arranging for the sale of his crop. He had insurance on the barn to the amount of $600 and $1,300 on the crop. Mr. Gastineau sustained a considerable loss as the barn cost him about $1,000 and he expected to realize at least 12 cents for the tobacco.

Attempt To Secure The Body Of George B. Saulley

Ghouls attempted to snatch the body of George B. Saulley on Monday night from the Buffalo cemetery in Stanford. They removed the earth from the grave down to the wooden box which encased the coffin, but were scared away, supposedly by the barking of dogs and the moving of a light in neighboring houses. Suspicion points to a Mrs. Harrison who bought a spade at a local store Tuesday afternoon, and whose actions were peculiar, and who did not give a satisfactory explanation of her actions on the night in question to detectives who interrogated her. A warrant was sworn out for her arrest, but she has not yet been apprehended.

George B. Saulley was a prominent young attorney at the Stanford bar, and was a son of the late Judge M. C. Saulley. He died in March 1910 of typhoid fever.

Gwyn.

The remains of Harriett Norris Gwyn were laid to rest in the Lancaster Cemetery on Sunday January 28th. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Frierson at Old Paint Lick Presbyterian church of which the deceased had been a faithful and consistent member since early childhood.

Mrs. Gwyn before her marriage was a Miss Mitchell the daughter of William and Sallie Mitchell. On her maternal side she was related to the illustrious Leavel family, her mother was a sister of John Y. Leavel deceased, she was a first cousin of Lewis Y. Leavel, Mesdames Dorcas L. Walker and J. A. Doty, all of whom have preceded her in death. Mr. and Mrs. Gwyn had only one child Walker, who with his family live in this county. The deceased spent all of her life in and near Paint Lick. She was a kind and affectionate wife and mother and ever ready to help one in distress, and the applaud it "Well done Good and faithful servant enter in to thy rest", will be hers for ever.

Mr. Josephs Death.

The sad intelligence of the death of Mr. Jacob Joseph brought sorrow to the hearts of Garrard county people on Saturday morning. He passed peacefully away at 12:30 o'clock Saturday morning at his home on Danville street in this city, surrounded by his sorrowing family and friends.

Mr. Joseph has been in failing health for several months, but with that energy for which he was noted, he persisted in being up and around and was on the streets as late as Thursday. Heart failure was the immediate cause of his death.

Mr. Joseph came to this county from Prussia, where he was born in 1853, and to Lancaster in 1880, where he embarked in the mercantile business. With the exception of one year he has been a resident of Lancaster since that time, and by his honesty and fair dealing has won a place in the hearts of Garrard county people which is accorded to few men. Mr. Joseph married Miss Elizabeth Fox of Eaton O., and as a result of that union were born Mrs. Charles Davis of Chattanooga Tenn. Adolph Joseph of Peru Ind. and Arthur Joseph of this place, all of whom with one brother and two sisters, Mr. Sam Joseph and Mrs. Dora Budweski of Cincinnati and Mrs. Celia Levisohn of New York, survive him.

No citizen has been taken from the community in recent years who will be more sadly missed than Mr. Joseph. He was a loving and devoted husband and father, a kind and true friend and an upright and conscientious citizen, especially will he be missed by the various lodges with which he was affiliated. He had reached the highest honors attainable in the local Masonic, K of P and Odd Fellows lodges, and in each of them he had his special work to perform, in which he was almost indispensable. All members feeling that their lodge work was lacking unless Brother Joseph was present to assist. Kind, charitable, always willing to lend a helping hand to those sick or in distress, regardless of color, class condition. No person was sick in the community that he did not call to tender his sympathy and assistance, often times going for miles in the country to visit a sick or distressed friend. Jewish by birth and faith, he was exemplary in his religion, yet thoroughly tolerant of others in their religious as well as all other views.

He was unselfishly devoted to the interests of his home town, its educational institution being his especial pride. He had served many times as a member of the school board. He had also served several times as a member of the City council.

His remains were escorted to the early morning train Monday, members of the Masonic fraternity acting as pall bearers, deputations from the Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows lodges accompanying them. The family was accompanied to Cincinnati by a number of friends, where on Monday afternoon all that was mortal of Jacob Joseph was laid to rest in the Jewish Cemetery on Walnut Hills.

"Uncle Tram" Conn Dead.

After a short illness of pneumonia Mr. J. T. Conn breathed his last on Saturday night at his home in Wilmore Ky. Mr. Conn, had lived until next March, would have reached the ripe old age of 89 years.

The following children survive him, Messrs. James, John, Thomas and Fred of this county, Mrs. Scott, of Texas, William and Miss Virginia, who lived with him, Tram Conn of Oklahoma, George Y. of San Diego, Cal., and Lieut. Ed. Conn of the Philippine Constabulary, Luzon P. I. Until a year ago Mr. Conn lived in this county, but sold his farm on the Richmond pike near town and removed to Wilmore where he purchased a farm, however he still called Garrard county his home.

"Uncle Tram", as he was familiarly known was one of Garrard's oldest and best citizens and his removal to another county was greatly regretted by his friends and neighbors.

He had long been a faithful attendant at the Methodist church where funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Clark, of Wilmore, assisted by Rev. C. C. Brown after which the remains were interred in the Lancaster cemetery.

ANNOUNCEMENTS For Circuit Judge

We are authorized to announce Hon. Charles A. Hardin a candidate for Judge of the Thirteenth Judicial District, at the November election, 1911, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Reciprocity Agreement Between United States and Canada.

Representatives of the United States and Canadian governments have reached a reciprocity agreement, which if ratified by congress, will eventually lower the prices of food stuffs in the United States, and which is a modification of a few of the objectionable features of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

The agreement was sent to Congress on Wednesday with an urgent message from President Taft for its adoption. However, it is not to have smooth sailing, the advocates of a protective tariff being against it and already predicting its defeat. The President is very much in earnest about the matter and is quoted as saying that he would, in the event of the failure of this congress to ratify it, take it to the next congress, and if he deemed it necessary call an extra session.

Chief among the items of the agreement is the admission into the United States without duty of wood pulp and print paper. This is a signal victory for the newspaper men and publishers of the country, and something for which they have long been working.

Canada gets a special tariff rate of ten cents per ton on iron ore and special rates on dressed lumber and aluminum.

Barbed wire and tin plate are placed on the free list by both countries.

American fruits and cotton seed oil go into Canada free of duty.

Agricultural implements, clocks, bacon, hams, lard, fresh and canned meats, canned vegetables, flour, wheat and other grains, fish, eggs, poultry, cattle and sheep are placed on the reciprocal list, carrying the lowest duty charged by either country.

Beginning of Our Second Year as Editor.

With the current issue begins our second year as editor, with what success we leave to our patrons to judge. We feel that it is unnecessary for us to say that we appreciate the liberal patronage of the public, as well as the many favors that have been conferred upon us, as well as the many kind words of encouragement spoken here and there, which serve to brighten life's rugged pathway, and which so materially assists in solving the many perplexing problems which confront an editor.

As for the future, we shall bend our every effort toward giving you as readable a paper as possible, keeping as well as we are able abreast of the times, and one that we trust will be a pleasure as well as a profit to our subscribers.

We are better prepared than ever before to serve the public in an acceptable manner, having equipped our office with new and up-to-date type and other modern improvements, and a very excellent office force to assist us in our work.

To our excellent corps of country correspondents we extend our thanks and trust we may retain their services. We have with us this year Mr. George Smith Jr., who will devote considerable of his time to assisting us in gathering and compiling the news and when another year has rolled round we hope that we may look back upon it with pleasure, feeling that our efforts have not been in vain, believing that the good people of Garrard county have had the kind of "Record" they deserve and appreciate.

Inviting Disaster.

The Commoner agrees with us when it says if the press dispatches correctly report the action of the Kentucky state committee it is inviting disaster. A refusal to include the selection of a senator in the call for a primary cannot be explained on any theory consistent with honest politics or the party's good. If the committee took the action reported without consulting the candidates its conduct is inexcusable. If it acted upon the suggestion of any candidate for the senate the name of the candidate should be given that the people may know who it is who is not willing to allow the people to pass upon his right to represent them. The time is passed when any man, claiming to be a democrat, can innocently favor dark lantern methods in choosing a senator. No democrat is fit for senator who is afraid to trust the people—consciousness of unfitness is the only explanation that fits the case. From now on until we secure the election of senators by popular vote, a refusal to submit the question to the people ought to be a conclusive argument against any candidate. Kentucky cannot afford to imitate Illinois in its senatorial elections.

The "Omnibus bill", which among other Kentucky claims of Churches and Fraternal organizations, contained several Garrard county claims, one of which was for the M. E. Church of Bryantsville, was killed by the House Committee on claims. Senator Bradley was justly incensed at their action, and assured his Kentucky friends who are interested that the bill will again be taken up and vigorously pushed at the next session of congress.

Henry Watterson fought on the Confederate side in the Civil War. But he can now say, and does say, in a paper on "Twenty Presidents of the United States," which appears in The Youth's Companion on February 16th, that no man can read the documentary history of Abraham Lincoln's administration, especially his letters and state papers, and doubt that he was among the really few great men who have lived in the world.

County Judge Gilbert of Shelby county has offered a reward of $200, for the return to custody of Jim West, colored, charged with unlawfully detaining a woman. West it will be remembered is one of the negroes taken from jail by the Shelbyville mob, but who made his escape from them. Judge Gilbert severely criticizes Governor Willson for his failure to offer a reward for West.

Miss Alice Loyd who has been prominent in all the efforts to organize the tobacco growers in Kentucky, has written a letter to Senator Paynter seeking to enlist his aid in having the data of the supplies on hand by the trusts collected and distributed among the farmers in the shape of public documents, thus enabling the farmer to regulate his acreage in accordance with the visible supply on hand.

The Court of appeals this week decided that the Fiscal Court must keep clean, comfortable and in good order the rooms in the court house of all the county officials. The Fiscal Court of Adair county made an appropriation for cleaning the court room, but required the county officials to clean their own rooms. The matter was carried to the Court of Appeals when decided as above mentioned.

Some of the papers are mentioning Judge Lewis L. Walker in connection with the republican nomination for Governor. No better timber could be found in that party and, Eighth district republicans and in fact, a great number in this section of the state would undoubtedly be behind him if he decided to run.—Interior Journal.

The House of Representatives on Tuesday by a vote of 188 to 159, decided in favor of San Francisco and against New Orleans as the city in which an exposition to celebrate the opening of the Panama Canal in 1915 shall be held.

King Manuel the deposed King of Portugal has been allowed a pension of $3300, per month by the Portuguese Government. Wonder how much he received in salary before he was deposed.

Tom L. Johnston, noted democratic politician and advocate of reduced street car fares, is suffering from Bright's disease and his death is expected at any time.

Waning Evil.

The Daily Advocate at Danville, Kentucky, for a number of years has been making a strenuous fight against the bringing of what it terms "snide" damage suits against railway companies. In circuit court in Danville last week, Judge L. L. Walker threw out on peremptory instructions the case of Shorty Jones against the Queen and Crescent Route. In the first place Brady Harlan contracted with the railway company to carry a car load of cross ties from one point to another in the Danville yards. Harlan then hired Jones to assist in the work. On the first trip, Jones let a tie fall and mash his great toe. Forthwith, through his attorneys, he sued the railway company for $1,000 damages. Judge Walker promptly threw this, as well as other similar cases out of court. In referring to this particular case, the Advocate says editorially in a current issue:

The legislature ought to pass a law prohibiting the filing of such damage suits as this one. The heavy burdens occasioned by courts costs must be paid by the tax-payers and taxes are already too high. This promiscuous damage suit practice is one of the paramount causes for Kentucky's lack of growth, as shown by the last census. In the first place, such methods prevent capital from coming into the State and on the other hand the enormous jury and court costs make high taxes. To the credit of Boyle county and Judge Walker such cases as these where the railway company is free from fault, are not permitted to occupy any more time than is absolutely necessary. The railway companies have a fixed policy of paying, all just claims promptly without litigation. Only cases that have little or no merit are permitted to go to court. It is to be that the average jury would give damages against a railroad on most any claim, but the educational awakening of this century has wiped out the old prejudice. Nowadays a railway company gets the same fair consideration as an individual.

"Addie" Thoss the catcher for the Richmond baseball team, and well known to Lancaster fans was married in Latonia last week to Miss Jane Royce.

Charles Dean of Bryantville lost a fine pacing mare last week from heart disease. She dropped dead in harness.

James I. Hamilton sold to Henry Hutchison of the Marcellus neighborhood a farm of 150 acres on Broadus branch near Lowell for $65.00 per acre.

Coffey & Bishop, of Lincoln county, are making large purchases of wheat for shipment, paying an average of 85 cents per bushel. They bought a couple of carloads in their own county, and one at Danville.

The mules at the Hume Clay sale, in Clark county, brought from $350 to 450 a pair. The 2-year-old mules sold for $240 to $250 a pair and the yearling mules sold at $85 each. The hogs sold at 9 1/2 cents a pound and the sheep brought $8 a head.

W. B. Burton purchased of Wilson Rogers a four year old trotting mare for $350. This mare is well bred, comes of a family whose members have made their mark on the turf and is a fine prospect. Mr. Burton will have her trained.

The city of Cincinnati has placed a ban on calves weighing under 100 lbs and less than four weeks old for slaughtering purposes. Shippers will bear this in mind when buying veals, as they are sure to experience a loss if they ship such calves to the Cincinnati market.

W. B. Burton purchased in Lebanon last week 22 mules 4 to 6 years old of John Burdett for $4500. Mr. Burton shipped to the Wilson Live Stock Co. of Wilson N. C. 20 mules white coat on an average of $208. per head and 5 horses which cost $165. each

C. P. Cook, of Bourbon county, sold to the White Baking Co., and the George Streitman Co., of Cincinnati, 3,000 pounds of cold storage butter. Mr. Cook purchased the butter last spring at an average price of 20 cents per pound and it has since been in cold storage in Paris.

It is reported that a sow belonging to a farmer living near Hopkinsville, Ky., recently farrowed twenty-one pigs. One of the litter died shortly after its birth, but the other twenty are living and doing well. The sow is of ordinary stock, but she probably holds the world's record for the largest number of pigs farrowed in one litter.

J. Mike Bowerman, the veteran trainer of Lexington, Ky., bought of Senator Joseph W. Bailey the crank four-year-old trotting stallion, Monrqa Axworthy. The price was private, but is known to be a fancy figure, as Bailey only recently purchased the horse at the Old Glory sale in New York for $4,000.

Price Rupert, No. 27, a Hereford bull, bred by Luce & Moxley, of this county and sold by them last fall to the Matador Land and Cattle Company, was made junior and grand champion at the Denver Live Stock Show last week. The same firm also bred the two-year-old steer that won in his class at the same exhibition. They still own the sire and dam of both animals.—Shelby Sentinel.

The mules at the Hume Clay sale held Wednesday on the place on the Paris pike, brought from $350 a pair to $450 a pair. The two-year old mules sold for $240 to $250 a pair. The yearling mules sold for $85 each. Frank Holley and Clay bought all of the yearling colts. All the short horn calves were bought by Messrs Renic & Sobb. All the hogs sold for $126 or 9 1/2 cents a lb. The sheep brought $8 a head and the furniture sold for very good prices.—Winchester Sun Sentinel.

At a meeting of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board, held at Lexington, Ky., last week, and at which Commissioner of Agriculture M. C. Rankin, presided the situation which, on account of the prevalence of scabies and other diseases among sheep in the State has caused danger of a quarantine by the United States authorities, was discussed and methods of improving the condition of sheep in the State were suggested. That the scabies in Kentucky might be quickly and effectually eradicated, a recommendation was offered that the Federal quarantine authorities while quarantining other States against Kentucky sheep, should be applied to for an order preventing other States from shipping sheep into Kentucky unless inspected and provided with a clean bill of health.

Mr. Alex R. Denny who has been using hedge fence since that mode of fencing was introduced in this county, and whose hedges around his farm are a thing of beauty, offers the following advice as to the care of hedge fence. First trim the sides straight, leaving the fence from twelve to fifteen inches across the top. It should be not over three feet high and smooth on top. From the 15th to the 20th of June of each year cut back the top severely to keep down the height, at the same time in July and September repeat the cutting, when the fence will be in shape for the next year. The advantage in trimming three times a year is the ease of trimming and the twigs drying up like weeds, do not have to be removed, and great economy of time in trimming together with the added beauty to the eye.

I tried doctors and various other remedies without relief. Finally I began using Wine of Cardui. Now I am entirely cured. I cheerfully advise all women similarly afflicted to try Cardui." MAKING AN EFFORT

It was in the serene moments after a metaphorical pat on the head from the president of the firm of which Kennedy was the branch manager for Chicago, that Kennedy, being at the time in an atmosphere unclouded by domestic complications, suggested that the president's wife, when she came through Chicago on her way east, should pass the night with the Kennedys instead of at a hotel. The president condescendingly approved the suggestion.

On his way home Kennedy began to feel qualms. It was not, however, until he had delivered himself of the fateful words and Mrs. Kennedy collapsed upon the nearest chair and gazed at him with moist eyes and the calmness of despair that he realized fully what a catastrophe he had precipitated.

"But she has millions in her own right!" Mrs. Kennedy gasped. "I can't have her here. She'd be so uncomfortable! For I can't have things that she is accustomed to having."
"Let her have them the way we're accustomed to having them, then," said Kennedy, rather truculently.

Mrs. Kennedy gave a little resigned sigh. "When is she coming?" she asked, faintly. "And how long is she going to stay?"

"She won't be here until after dinner tomorrow—" Kennedy began.

He was interrupted by a hysterical shriek.

"Oh, of course, she'll have to come," Mrs. Kennedy admitted. "Don't worry, dear."

Kennedy's parting instructions to her the next morning were: "Now, don't you go bothering to have things fixed up any different. The old man's a good fellow and I guess his wife won't be so worse."

With a non-committal smile Mrs. Kennedy kissed him goodbye, then dashed back into the house, intent upon doing all that mortal woman could to impress the coming guest with the fact that the Kennedy family could not and would not exist save in the lap of luxury.

She pulled down curtains in rooms into which the president's wife could not by any possibility have any excuse for prowling. These she persuaded Sarah to wash, while she herself swept and dusted and polished furiously. She bullied the laundry into returning the cherished best tablecloth. From her next-door neighbor and intimate friend she borrowed several small but beautiful Oriental rugs and a handsome silver individual breakfast service, from which Mrs. Turner was destined, while still reposing in bed, to take her morning meal with proper elegance in the spick and span guest room. When she had borrowed and begged and put in place everything she could think of that might give a touch of artless elegance, she sat down to make out the menus.

"I will have a nice luncheon and a nice dinner," she murmured, biting the end of her pencil. "I'll show her that even if we're not millionaires we know the right things."

The consequence of this high mental attitude was that she arranged on paper two meals of which Sarah was incapable.

"I'll have a caterer," was her prompt decision. She had gone too far to be balked by trifles now. "And I'll have a maid come tonight to do the waiting."

The next day was eminently successful, if a trifle breathless. By an imperceptible though determined effort, Mrs. Kennedy kept the guest circling about in an atmosphere of Oriental rugs, heavy silver and cut glass. The luncheon passed off without a hitch. Afternoon tea was served in perfect style. Kennedy, upon his arrival just before dinner, was increased in his dinner coat without a murmur and was a prideful object to his wife when the feast was accomplished.

"Oh, that was really a dream. Relieved of all anxiety as to material things, Mrs. Kennedy, who was an exceptionally good talker, was able to throw herself into the task of providing mental refreshment for her guest. Mrs. Turner beamed, praised and ate with dainty heartiness. Shortly after they left the table she fluttered upstairs, attended by the rented maid, to prepare for her departure.

She fairly radiated joy when she met her hostess at the foot of the stairs when she came down again. She took Mrs. Kennedy's two small hands in hers so tenderly that the action had almost the effect of a caress.

"Ah," she cooed; "I can never tell you what a treat you have given me. I shall never, never forget this day. The simplicity of it is the most wonderful thing I have ever seen. Such simplicity is in itself exquisite beauty. Henceforth I shall make my motto 'Plain living and high thinking,' for you have taught me the meaning of those words."

When Kennedy returned from escorting the too appreciative guest to the train his wife met him with a face on which there was a broad smile, though it still bore some traces of tears.

"Oh, Jimmie!" she gasped. "Wasn't it awful? And the funny part of it was that she was sincere! She really thought we were letting her take us 'just as we were.' And after the wild efforts I made!"

Kennedy looked rather bewildered. "Did you make an effort?" he asked. "I didn't notice anything."
